Call for Research Proposals - Submission Deadline: July 15, 2024

Dear Faculty and Researchers,

We are excited to announce the opening of the call for SEED Money Research Proposals, aimed at fostering innovative research initiatives within our academic community. This funding opportunity presents a chance for faculty members and researchers to initiate groundbreaking projects, drive interdisciplinary collaborations, and contribute to the advancement of knowledge in our fields.

The SEED Money program is designed to support early-stage research endeavors with the potential for significant impact. We invite you to submit proposals that align with the program's objectives and demonstrate creativity, feasibility, and scholarly merit.

Key Details:

Submission Deadline: July 15, 2024

Funding Amount: Up to Rs.1,00,000/-

Duration: 1 Year

Submission Guidelines:

Proposals should be prepared according to the provided guidelines, including a clear project description, objectives, methodology, and budget details.

Collaborative projects involving multiple departments or disciplines are encouraged.

Applications must be submitted electronically to [Insert Submission Email Address] by the deadline.

This is an excellent opportunity for you to explore new research avenues, establish collaborations, and access resources to support your scholarly pursuits.

For detailed information on eligibility criteria, application guidelines, and submission procedures, please refer to the attached policy.

We encourage all interested faculty members and researchers to take advantage of this opportunity and submit their proposals by the deadline.

Should you have any inquiries or require further assistance, please don't hesitate to contact the Research and Department Cell.

Thank you for your attention, and we look forward to receiving your innovative proposals.

Best Regards,
